

AWADHI

Stars: White / Yellow / Black Hole

Known for: The Noble Gas Moon Argim, The Soletta Artifact, The Woodland Temples on Awadhi, The Black Hole

Exports: Helium 8, Iron

Imports: -

This doomed binary star system captured a rogue small black hole, bringing the whole system into an unstable three body state. Calculations about the movement of the celestial bodies is only possible a few segments in advance. It's only a matter of time until there will be the next collision or one of the bodies will be flung off into the darkness between the stars. This could be a catastrophic event, cutting off the complete Algol route from the rest of the Horizon.

Most planets and gas giants have already been destroyed by the enormous forces that plague the system. Only four major planetoids are left.

AWADHI-A

Denebula: A small planet with a boiling atmosphere.

Aleawdi: Helium 8 mining colony - the only permanent habitation.

AWADHI-B

Hash-Ahn: Dead chunk of iron, hit by constant astroid bombardment.

OTHERS

Almas: Nicknamed "the Destroyer". Former gas giant, now only a diamond core with unpredictable path.

Alwaghad: The black hole on a very erratic path.

THE AWADHI SUN FAN

A strange construct is orbiting the planet Denebula in the Awadhi system. The boiling planet, whose atmosphere consists of the noble gas hargium, is shadowed at regular intervals by a round construct reminiscent of a hand fan with blades that change colors from obsidian black to blinding silver.

There is believed to be some form of intelligence controlling the phenomenon. When the sun fan shadows the planet, the valuable hargium in the atmosphere is crystalized into fractalized hailstones. Death-defying prospectors seize the opportunity to fly into the hailstorms to gather the concentrated hargium, which can be sold to the factions or to one of the Horizon's many shipyards. Hargium increases the thrust of graviton projectors.

THE SEARCH FOR A SAFE ROUTE

Since the portal drive technology came to the Third Horizon, the New Colonial Agency is searching for a jump route between Altai and Algol.
